Francois Giguere, Wealth Manager

Francois@assetsandincome.com

In August 2014, Francois embarked on a new career after spending twenty years as an executive in the National Hockey League with the Colorado Avalanche, Dallas Stars, Boston Bruins and Quebec Nordiques. He served as the General Manager of the Colorado Avalanche from 2006 to 2009.

Francois partners with a small number of successful athletes and families to help grow and protect their investments to meet and realize their financial goals. He serves as his client's chief financial officer. In other words, he coordinates and communicates with his client's expert team and then reports back to his client.

Many families have not set up a game plan to prepare for retirement. According to one survey, more than one-third of all working age adults haven't saved any money toward retirement.* Francois' mission is to do his part to improve his clients' experience during retirement and reduce their financial worry.

Born and raised in Quebec City Canada, Francois has lived in the United States since 1995. He is bilingual being raised in a French Canadian culture. He and his family became United States citizens in 2002. Francois is married to his wife, Brigitte, and has a daughter and a son Frederique and Philippe. Francois is an avid sports fan and participant. He enjoys playing tennis and golf and also enjoys cycling and skiing.

Licenses and Affiliations

Francois earned his Bachelor of Business Administration, Accounting License and Law Certificate from Laval University in Quebec Canada. He practiced in an accounting firm, Ernst & Young, as a chartered accountant for five years. More recently, he successfully passed the CFP (certified financial planner) certification examination in July 2014. Francois is a member of the Financial Planning Association. He holds FINRA Series 7 and 66 licenses, as well as his life and health insurance license.
